Eligibility:

1. The program is open to Arab filmmakers, regardless of their country of residency.
2. Applicants must be editors working on their first or second feature-length film in post-production.
3. Project Status: The project must be in the post-production phase at the time of application.

4. Genre: All film genres are welcome, including narrative, documentary, and experimental films.

Requirements:

1. Application Form: Complete and submit the official application form on the RFC website.
2. Film Synopsis: Provide a detailed synopsis of the film, including its theme, plot, and key characters (a maximum of 500 words).
3. Director's Statement: Submit a statement from the director explaining the film's vision, objectives, and the project's current state (max 500 words).
4. Editing Sample: Include a 10-15 minute edited sample of the film. This should showcase a key scene or sequence representing the film's tone and style.
5. Editor's Work Samples: Provide at least two samples of the editor's previous work, demonstrating their editing style and capabilities.
6. Post-production Plan: Provide a detailed plan outlining the post-production schedule, including key milestones and deadlines (max 500 words).
7. Team Bio: Submit a brief biography of the key team members, including the director, producer(s), and editor (max 200 words each).
8. Commitment: A signed statement confirming the commitment to participate fully in both phases of the lab.
9. Language: All application materials and film samples must be submitted in English or with English subtitles.
